Plan Reception To Honor Six Local Authors

(T.H.)

Six local authors of recently-published or soon-to-be published books and articles will be honored at a reception Sunday, April 17, hosted by the Friends of Cunningham Memorial Library at Indiana State University.

The 4 p.m. gathering in Room B-45 of the library will honor Dr. Ronald L. Baker, Dr. Marvin Carmony, Ms. F. Blanche Foster, Harry R. Gee, Ms. Eileen Jensen and Dr. Ray A. Neff. Copies of their works will be on display and the authors will autograph copies which persons bring with them.

The reception is open to members and their guests.

Dr. Barbara Weinbaum, co-chairperson of the Friends group, and Sul H. Lee, dean of ISU library services, will be on hand to welcome and introduce the local authors.

Dr. Baker and Dr. Carmony, members of the ISU English faculty, co-authored Indiana Place Names, a book explaining the origins of many towns and cities in the state. Ms. Foster, a librarian at South Vigo, is author of the book The West Indies—A Conceptual View, a travel guide and history of the area.

Gee, a member of the ISU music faculty, is an arranger-composer who has authored some 50 music articles for journals. Ms. Jensen contributes articles and stories to a number of national magazines such as McCall's.

A member of the ISU Department of Health and Safety faculty, Dr. Neff is the author of the soon-to-be published work on John Wilkes Booth and the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

The reception is another Friends special event promoting closer relationship between the ISU library and the community. Information about membership may be obtained from any member of the Board of Directors or Dr. Robert O'Neill, head of rare books and special collections at Cunningham Memorial Library.

Tuesday 18 1978

The works of four local black authors are featured in a display at the Emeline Fairbanks Memorial Library.

The glass display case in the lobby exhibits some books, original manuscripts and photos related to the lives and work of John Lyda, Jane Shackelford, Evangeline Harris Merriwether and Blanche Foster, all of whom are associated with local education, according to the report from Jessie Hord, reference librarian with the Vigo County Public Library.

Mrs. Foster, now working on her fifth book, is librarian at Terre Haute South Vigo High School with experience including 20 years in Detroit public schools and the teaching of library science to graduate students at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria. Her first four books were "Dahomey," now known as the Republic of Beninin, West Africa; "Kenya," the East African nation; "The West Indies, A Conceptual View," and "People to Know Better," a series of biographical chapters about black Americans who have achieved success in various fields.

John Wesley Lyda, Mrs. Hord reports, was well known in literary circles for his book, "The History of the Negro in Indiana. He also published many articles in professional journals and was the author of "The History of the Eastern Star in Indiana." He retired from teaching in 1957 and was active in civic and religious work.

Evangeline Harris Merriwether, also an author-teacher, "was perhaps best known for her 'Stories for Little Tots,' brief biographies of the lives of such notables as Crispus Attucks, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, Dr. George Washington Carver and others, written in easy language with meaningful illustrations to help little children appreciate achievements of the black man in America." Other works include "The Family," and the lyrics and music for the theme song of the local Alpha Kappa Sorority.

Jane Dabney Shackelford, author of the well-known "Child's Story of the Negro," and "My Happy Days," has received many honors in the fields of education and community service, Mrs. Hord advises, noting Mrs. Shackelford's listing in "Who's Who of American Women" since its inception and in the seventh, eighth and ninth editions of "Who's Who in the Midwest." She taught in local public schools from 1919 to 1962 and was active in church and community organizations such as the Girl Scouts, YWCA, the American Association of University Women and the League of Women Voters.
